

THE FOX'S PROPHECY

This was found among the papers of the late D.W. Nash, probably written during the winter of 1870-1871. At that time the military triumphs during the previous autumn of the Federated German States against France impressed the writer and his mind was therefore full of foreboding about the effect of the rise of a great and ambitious power like Prussia on England.

We have reproduced the poem and footnotes into a booklet with an attractive red card cover depicting a reproduction of a Peter Biegel fox for £2.50 which includes a £1 donation to the COUNTRYSIDE ALLIANCE for every copy sold.
